Summersbook (UK) Ltd. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Magna Carta: In Essex, Andrew Summers, John Debenham, Magna Carta (Essex) examines the events and background leading up to the sealing of the Magna Carta by King John in the year 1215. We look particularly at the status of Essex at the time, the role of its powerful nobility and some of the curious connections the county has with this historic event. In a few pages we have tried to summarise the above as concisely and as simply as possible. Many readers may be familiar with two of Magna Carta's most famous clauses:- 39. No free man shall be seized or imprisoned, or stripped of his rights or possessions, or outlawed or exiled, or deprived of his standing in any way, nor will we proceed with force against him, or send others to do so, except by the lawful judgment of his equals or by the law of the land. 40. To no one will we sell, to no one deny or delay right or justice. Yet these are only two of some 61 clauses set down in order of ranking. They have been quoted frequently at turning points during English history such as the trial and execution of King Charles I and the arrival of William and Mary, followed by Queen Anne, after the 'Glorious Revolution'. These two clauses are pillars of the US constitution. However the word 'free men' is open to misinterpretation. In 1776, in the United States, slaves were not 'free men' so the clause did not apply. This was also the case in feudal England where, in 1215 and for many years after, most people who worked on the land were in servitude to their baronial masters. There are three other clauses in the Magna Carta that...
